For use with upper elementary and middle school students. Imagine a school or classroom where learners manage and resolve their own conflicts, where students and teachers cooperate, where diversity is celebrated, where feelings are expressed in ways that are neither aggressive nor destructive, where responsibility is the norm. Creating the Peaceable School presents a workable plan for achieving this vision. Through the conflict resolution strategies of mediation, negotiation, and group problem solving, students learn to recognize, manage, and resolve conflicts in peaceful, noncoercive ways. The Student Manual is a workbook that summarizes important concepts and contains a variety of forms and worksheets designed to reinforce learning.

place in America's public schools. The reality of children killing children has sparked a national debate over school violence and what can be done to prevent it. As an educator, I have been deeply affected by these episodes of school violence. After watching newscasts of a middle school shooting in Jonesboro, Arkansas, I decided that teaching conflict resolution would have to be a priority in my classroom. My challenge was to create a project that my students would find interesting, motivational, and meaningful. Because of curriculum demands, the project had to teach conflict resolution strategies as well as basic literacy skills such as reading, writing, editing, speaking, listening, and viewing. I decided to have my class produce a video, called Choose Peace. The students' goal was to create skits describing how to solve everyday conflicts without using violence. The activity required students to integrate their literacy skills with their newly gained conflict resolution strategies. The purpose of this study is to examine how elementary students' perceptions of violence change after participating in a conflict resolution/literacy program. The study will only assess whether students' perceptions changed, not whether the students integrated these conflict resolution strategies into their real lives. The project was conducted in a heterogeneously grouped fourth grade classroom. Of the twenty-five students in the classroom fourteen were boys and eleven were girls. Eight of the students were identified as having special needs. The community in which the school is located is made up of primarily working-class families. All students involved with the activity participated in two series of interviews, one before working on the project, and one after. The interviews were transcribed and video taped. The examiner then compared the data collected in the two sets of interviews, noting any changes in perceptions after participating in the project. The data was also analyzed for any gender differences in perceptions of violence. The examiner also took field notes throughout the activity, paying special attention to how students reacted to conflicts during the creation of the video. There were indeed differences between boys' and girls' perceptions of violence. When confronted with a conflict, boys were more likely to react spontaneously than girls were. On the whole, boys were more likely to run away or react violently to conflict situations. On the other hand, girls were more likely to talk out their problems, look for a solution, and apologize when involved in a conflict. They were much less likely to use violence than boys were. The study proved that students' perceptions of violence did change after participating in the conflict resolution program. After making the video, students had a much clearer understanding of what violence was. They were able to name more places where violence occurs, reasons for violent behavior, and ways to solve problems without using violence. Students were very aware of the presence of violence in the world and understood the negative consequences of violent behavior. The project was extremely successful. Not only did it meet its objective of integrating conflict resolution into the language arts curriculum, but it allowed the students to develop problem solving and higher order thinking skills. The students were actively involved in their own learning, and it was evident that they did begin to internalize some of the strategies discussed in class.

This best-selling conflict management activity book is a must have for anyone working with elementary/middle school students today. Developed for educators, juvenile justice practitioners, and others in youth-serving organizations to heighten awareness of conflict resolution education and its potential to help settle disputes peacefully in a variety of settings. The guide provides background information on conflict resolution education; an overview of four widely used, promising, and effective approaches; and guidance on how to initiate and implement conflict resolution education programs in various settings. Includes curriculum resources, reading list, glossary and assessment forms. Charts and tables.

Based on the view that making social concepts and feelings concrete would help children in primary grades to take turns, cooperate, and solve their problems respectfully, this curriculum uses a story about the Rainbow Kids, an imaginary community of children, to introduce children to social concepts and conflict resolution skills. The Rainbow Kids experience emotions that are conveyed by the weather around them. These simple "sunny" and "cloudy" metaphors turn abstract notions of behavior into physical expressions young children can easily comprehend. Part 1 of the curriculum guide describes the impetus for the program, discusses how the program works, summarizes the story, and details the procedures involved in presenting the program. Part 2 contains the seven lessons and two activities comprising the program; this part includes sample program materials in six appendices, and lists selected resources for elementary school teachers. Part 3 is a separate booklet for students containing "The Rainbow Kids" story. (Contains 15 references.) (KB)

Noting that elementary school students can learn to resolve basic everyday conflicts without resorting to verbal or physical aggression, this empathy-based program provides a foundation for resolving problems without the intervention of mediators or adults and for providing written documentation of the solution for parents, administrators, and teachers. The program is designed to be introduced to a class in three to four 30-minute lessons. Children learn to write or draw why they are upset, exchange papers and learn why the other person is upset, write or draw a possible solution, share solutions with the other person, and mark the other person's paper to indicate what they agree to do to help end the conflict. Chapters 1 and 2 of the book explain how the process works. Chapter 3 shows how to use the process in the classroom. Chapter 4 illustrates how to set up basic conflict resolution centers that can be used in a variety of locations within a school. Chapters 5 and 6 tell how to use the process in group or individual counseling and at home. Included in this guide are lesson plans, reproducible worksheets, and posters that illustrate the conflict resolution process. Appended are samples showing how the technique works and answers to commonly asked questions. (KB)
